

Student contribution, March 31, linked to our discussion of The Real Thing

Came across this quote from Stoppard when reading an interview with him, I think it might remind you more than little bit of Henry.

But I am now a little extreme about the English language. I mean just to take a point which, I was going to say which is trivial but of course it's not trivial otherwise I wouldn't think about it or tell you about it, but um every time I, I see who instead of whom in a newspaper it's like a, it's almost like a physical pain and it offends me deeply, it makes me angry, and a few years ago one would occasionally see who instead of whom in that small general newsprint for news stories, that sort of eight point, and now you see it in thirty two point headlines and you think well should I write in about this, and you think no it's, it's all too late, it's all, the pass has been lost.

Here's the link if you are interested.

<http://www.bbc.co.uk/radio3/playlists/2002aprjun/johntusat0216.shtml>